

PARK WELCOME IN GEORGETOWN

Senate Appropriation Pleases
Residents of That Section.

Georgetown residents are much gratified over the passage of the bill in the Senate which appropriates $150,000 for the purchase of the Montrose tract, on Georgetown Heights. The tract is known as the Boyce property, and contains about sixteen acres. It is located on the north side of R street, just east of Lovers' Lane, and lies immediately opposite the Jackson public school building.

This tract is splendidly adapted for park purposes, and it would take but a very small expenditure to put it in condition. About fifty magnificent oak trees, nearly a century old, add to the natural beauty of the proposed park.

Some months ago several Philadelphia capitalists, it is stated, made an offer of $150,000 for the Boyce property, with the intention of improving it by the erection of 100 modern brick houses, but when the owners discovered their intention, their offer was refused. Experts on the value of land in this vicinity say that the price mentioned in the bill is reasonable.

The only improvement on the tract is the Boyce mansion, one of Georgetown's old landmarks. It has not been occupied for several years. The house and grounds have been well taken care of, however.

The Chesapeake and Ohio canal, which has been closed for the winter months, will open for the season's traffic in a few days. During the past three months a number of improvements have been made to the canal bed. Traffic over the waterway is controlled by the Canal Towing Company, of which Col. G. L. Nicholson is the general manager. The principal shipments made over the canal are of soft coal from Cumberland, the most of which is taken from the Georgetown wharf by the Consolidation Coal Company's barges to New England ports.

During the past week many unusually large catfish have been caught in the Potomac near the outlet lock. The fish ranged in weight from eight to sixteen pounds. Joseph Fletcher, of the Canal road, landed one the other day which tipped the scales at sixteen and one-half pounds, and Henry Jackson, of Georgetown, caught two of the fish weighing nine pounds each.

Mrs. John J. Sullivan, of 3509 O street northwest, who has been ill at the Georgetown University Hospital for some weeks, is reported to be much improved.

The work on pier No. 7 of the Aqueduct bridge is rapidly progressing, despite the number of difficulties experienced by the contractors, McMullen, McDermott & Hoffman. The cofferdam has been entirely completed, and all the water drawn off, preparatory to the tearing down of the old pier. A new pier will be constructed which will have a concrete base to the water level. During the recent high water the contractors suffered considerable financial loss.

About $500,000 is to be expended at Fort Myer, Alexandria county, Va., this summer. A new barracks, field officers' quarters, quarters for two lieutenants, gun sheds, stable for cavalry artillery, guard house, and shops are to be erected. All of the new buildings will be situated south of the post hospital.

COMMITTEE OPPOSES AUTOMOBILE BILL

The House Committee on the Judiciary has turned its face against the pending bill for national regulation and identification of automobiles, although many communications have come to members of the committee from automobile clubs and millionaire motorists, asking favorable consideration of the measure.

The position of the committee is that passage of such a bill would be an interference with the rights of the States and their police powers.

REUTERDAHL LAMPONED; HOUSE HEARS STANZAS

Offering to Muse Sweetens
Dull Debate on Prosaic
Postal Laws.

In mean measure four stanzas, which expresses the sentiment against the critic-in-chief of the United States Navy, were read on the floor of the House. The poem, read at the suggestion of Congressman Olcott, provoked much mirth and, although little was said, many Representatives Wayback and Ruralite were an expression which plainly said, "them's my sentiments, too."

The poem which Mr. Olcott asked leave to have read while Minority Leader Williams and Representative Lloyd were tussling over the postal laws, follows:

REPLY TO THE CRITICISM OF OUR NAVY.

Come, all ye men-o'-war-men, and listen to my lay;
'Tis of a New York artist who comes from cold Norway.

He wrote about our Navy, the ships both great and small
That he took passage in our fleet, bold Henry Reuter-dahl.

In reference to construction of all our ships afloat;
He pictures their destruction in the article he wrote.

He's not in fear of our defeat, the chances are so small
That he took passage in our fleet, bold Henry Reuter-dahl.

He never thought that Congress would take his case in hand;

PENNSYLVANIAN MISSING;
HIS SON LOST YEARS AGO

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 5.—Exactly in the way in which his son wandered away from home twelve years ago and was never heard from, John Nielson of Tuscarora, is missing from home, and although the mountains were searched all day for traces of the father, no clue was obtained by searching parties and he has been given up by his family.

Reuter-dahl Has Gail
For Almost Any Fate

Reuter-dahl.
Has the gall.
And thinks he is the grave.
He's roasted every spar and man
In our beloved navy.

To contradict his statements two admirals took the stand.
To leave him on an island, where deadly serpents crawl.
Would be the proper medicine for Mr. Reuter-dahl.

Despite all Reuter-dahl has said, our minds are now at ease.
For we've seen a fine Navy as floats upon the seas.
We're proud of all command'rs, our gunners' aim is true;
We glory in our country, and the Red, White, and Blue.

Of course the criticism of the critic and the critic's criticism do not compare. Mr. Reuter-dahl's remarks are fair and based on facts (at least he says they are), but a splendid compliment is paid to the Norway-New Yorker by "Trooper," because of his fearlessness in embarking upon a battoship with paper-mache hulls, celluloid fire-boxes, tissue paper water tanks, rheumatic engines, and wooden pilot.

MAN WANTED FOR MURDER TRACED TO ITALIAN HOME

An investigation is being made by Central Office detectives regarding the rumor that Sansalone, Giovanni Bassilio, alias John Sansalone, the Italian who is wanted for the murder of Arthur Winter on the night of September 7, 1907, has been located in his native country.

The information of Bassilio's whereabouts reached the police through private channels, and it is probable that the Italian authorities at Agnana, in the province of Calabria, where he is said to be visiting relatives, may be asked to apprehend the man.

KENYON STREET MEASURE OPPOSED BY COMMISSIONERS

Unfavorable report was today made by the Commissioners upon the bill providing for the extension of Kenyon street from Fourteenth to School street northwest. The Commissioners, in their report to Congress, say the measure provides for the purchase of two pieces of property for $45,575, which the land is assessed at only $27,000.

The Commissioners recommend a substitute which provides that in paying for property condemned for extension of streets, the improvements to the land be excluded from the purchase price, but the cost of the proceedings be included.

AUTO SMASHES WINDOW; DRIVER NOT INJURED

To avoid driving his small automobile into a pair of spirited horses of 3rd street yesterday, Rudolph Kauffmann, managing editor of the Evening Star, sent the car crashing through the plate-glass window of the J. Maury Dove Coal Company.

Mr. Kauffmann had just turned into 3rd street when he narrowly escaped a collision. A moment later a pair of spirited horses blocked the way, and to avoid hitting them Mr. Kauffmann ran his machine over the curb. The car had such headway that its progress was not checked until it plumed through the window. Mr. Kauffmann was not injured.
